"FIXED GAME" CRIES ARE NOT BORNE OUT IN CLOSE ANALYSIS

Even Division of the Series Because of Ins and Outs of Sport.

DETROIT SHOWING MUCH BETTER FORM

Bush and Schmidt Improve in Field and Cobb and Crawford at Bat.

By THOMAS S. RICE.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 15.—It goes without saying that in many cities, especially Pittsburgh and Detroit, there are thousands of wiseguys and rough necks who are boring all who will listen with tales that the world's series is being split up in order that the club owners may derive the benefit from the full seven games. That was as inevitable as that the press agents should seek the chorus girls out prominent men to ask them what they thought of woman's suffrage.

On the Square.

But don't let that "fixed series" bleat worry you any more than the publicity chatter of the silvers of the lights. The six games between Pittsburgh and Detroit have been evenly divided because of the in and out baseball played by the two teams, and no sane man who has seen them would believe otherwise.

Is Only Logical.

Mullin pitched excellent ball last Friday, and a blindman with a glass eye could see that he lost because of the fine funk which overcame most of his support in the face of the great crowd and heavy responsibility. He pitched shut-out ball on Monday and naturally won. Yesterday his support was a thousand per cent better than on Friday, and it was logical that he should win.

Willis or Maddox was the reasonable choice for the Pittsburgh management to send to the slab in the sixth game. Willis got the call. Pittsburgh could lose a game and suffer no worse than a tie. Maddox was a stronger proposition, but if he had pitched the sixth he might not have been in for the seventh. Anything wrong with that? Not at all, except in the minds of sure-thing gamblers who never bet unless they have an ace in the hole, five up their sleeve, and a drunken sailor to play with.

The Tigers must be given credit for two all important things in the sixth game—their keenness and their steadiness. Their form yesterday in the field was astonishing. Leading the new thought movement in gardening was Schmidt. He tried to foul and ended the game by a throw to Morley that caught Gibson stealing on Abaticchio's third strike. Schmidt was not perfect, for he was tardy and inaccurate in throwing to Tom Jones on Wilson's tap in the ninth inning, and when Miller stole second with Leach on third in the third inning he was too slow to nail Miller or work a relay via Mullin to get Leach.

Schmidt Improves.

Schmidt pulled off one play that has not occurred in Washington for a long time. With one out in the sixth, Miller singled. Abaticchio's high foul was garnered by Schmidt after a long run to the stand. As soon as the ball was caught Miller tried for second. It was a grand opportunity for Schmidt to go to sleep, but he was wide awake and heaved to Bush, who covered second. It was a poor shot, but Bush pulled it in with one hand and touched the runner. Pretty clever for the much roasted Herr Schmidt.

Bush began to heat up in his fielding on Tuesday, and yesterday he was operating in this part of the diamond with vigor and vim and distinctly on the aggressive, as opposed to his hesitation and timidity in the early games.

In fact, the whole Detroit team played like an entirely different organization. Crawford hit at nearly all sections throughout the country, except in the north Atlantic States and portions of the Lake region.

Fair weather will prevail for several days in all sections east of the Mississippi, with the exception of snow flurries in the vicinity of the Great Lakes.

JAPANESE DIPLOMATS BESTING UNCLE SAM

Critics Make Sensational Charges of Manner in Which United States Has Been Dominated by the Mikado's Officials.

By JAMES HAY, Jr.

The light thrown on the situation in the Orient as a result of the dismissal of Charles R. Crane, the new minister to China, indicates that Japan is rapidly achieving domination of Oriental affairs and knocking holes into the open-door policy which this country is pledged to promote.

This is the cry of the friends of China in Washington, and coupled with it is the claim that Japan is pursuing her course of self-aggrandizement unopposed by the United States and undeterred by treaty obligations.

Japan Had Privilege.

From Peking today comes the unexpected information that the Japanese legation had the privilege of explaining to the diplomatic world and the general public the reasons of Secretary of State Knox for dismissing Crane. In the ordinary course of events the Chinese government, being the party most interested, would have made the announcement.

At the same time comes the news that the Chinese regard the whole situation in the Orient with alarm, and that "Japanese statesmen" think Crane was let out because of Mr. Knox's fear that he would not work "in harmony with Japan."

Among the critics, who say Japan is besting this country in diplomacy and pursuing her course of self-enrichment almost at will, there are heard these charges:

That American commerce with Manchuria has been hampered down through the instrumentality of Japan.

That Japan violated the open door principle when she forced on China the treaties of last summer, giving her

BIG STEEL MERGER IS EXPECTED TODAY

Independents May Enter Into Agreement With Trust.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—It is believed that a close working agreement between the United States Steel trust and the Independent Steel manufacturers of the country will be entered into today at a meeting of the independents at Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the board of the steel trust.

The independents are meeting here today in conference with Judge Gary, prior to a dinner that will tender them a sort of love feast. For this dinner will be given exclusively by the independents.

During the picnic Judge Gary called the independents into conference on a number of occasions and convinced them that the way to hold up the market was to curtail production and assure them that the steel corporation would do its part of the work. For this they are banqueting him tonight.

It is believed that the conference which will precede the dinner will end in the closest working agreement ever formed in the steel industry, and that the independents and the trust will apportion territory and an agreement as to the price of pig iron.

The two District places at the Naval Academy will be vacated by the graduation of Roger W. Paine and J. M. Sylvester in 1911. Under the law the President may at any time between June 1, 1910, and March 1, 1911, principal and provision for these will be made in the examinations. All candidates must be actual residents of the District of Columbia, and of suitable age and qualifications.

CLEVELAND JURY INDICTS COBB

Ball Player Charged With Stabbing Watchman at Hotel.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 15.—Ty Cobb, star of the Detroit baseball team, was today indicted by the county grand jury on a charge of "stabbing to wound" George Stanchfield, a watchman at the Euclid Hotel, here about a month ago.

It is not known what steps the authorities will take to apprehend Cobb, who is now in Detroit with the Detroit club.

SENATOR LINDSEY DIES THIS MORNING

Successor to John G. Carlisle Passes Away in Frankfort, Ky.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Oct. 15.—Former United States Senator William Lindsey died at 8 o'clock this morning, after an illness of several weeks.

He was elected to the Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of John G. Carlisle. He also served on the Interstate Commerce Commission, the World's Columbian Commission, and filled other important positions.

WHISKY THE LOOT OF SAFE CRACKERS

Virginia Railroad Station Is Robbed of Liquor and Cash.

WINCHESTER, Va., Oct. 15.—Professional safe crackers, who have been operating in this part of the valley for some time, early this morning dynamited the safe in the Norfolk and Western depot at White Post, Clarke county, and got $15 in cash and a quantity of railroad tickets.

The burglars also took several express packages marked from Baltimore, and about two gallons of whisky, consigned to residents of the neighborhood.

The safe was cracked after the night operator left. The police have no clue.

STREET CLEANING COST IS REDUCED

A decrease of $610.89 in the cost of street cleaning as compared with September of last year is shown by a report of James M. Wood, Superintendent of the Street Cleaning Department, submitted to the Commissioners today.

At the same time the schedules were larger than ever before, the machine force averaging 2,049.091 square yards daily.

TVERTON SUSPECTS ARE HEED WITHOUT BAIL FOR MURDER

Two Men Are Arraigned on Charge of Killing Suit Case Victim.

MOTHER ARRIVES TO EXAMINE BODY

Little Doubt Remains That Victim Was Amelie St. Jean, of Woonsocket, R. I.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 15.—Charged with the murder of Amelie St. Jean, of Woonsocket, R. I., parts of whose dismembered body have been discovered in the woods at Tiverton, R. I., Wilfrid Thibault and Frank Hill were arraigned in police court today and held without bonds for appearance on October 23.

Thibault and Hill are married, with families. The former has been chauffeur here for Lawyer W. E. Fuller, Jr., and the latter sometimes posed as a physician. It was the discovery of the name "Frank Hill, Fall River," on the suit case in which the first portions of the dead girl's body was found which directed suspicion to Hill and his connection with Thibault, who admits having been friendly with the St. Jean girl, resulted in his arrest.

Fully satisfied by the partial identification that the murder victim is her daughter, but yet wishing to make sure by the evidence of her eyes, Mrs. Joseph St. Jean arrived here today from her Woonsocket home and at once departed for Tiverton to view the sections of the body already found. Late dispatches from here recently told the police that the murder victim has not yet been recovered.

Accepting a partial identification of the victim of the murder mystery at Tiverton, R. I., as Amelie St. Jean, of Woonsocket, R. I., who disappeared from here recently, the police today arrested Thibault and Hill, who sometimes posed as a physician, for possible connection with the crime.

Admit Knowing Girl.

Both Hill and Thibault admit they knew the St. Jean girl, but both, though sweating for hours, absolutely deny completely in her death. Hill admits the girl told him that she was in trouble and asked his advice.

Admitting that a suit case in which parts of the dismembered body were found once been his, he nevertheless stands firmly by the statement that it had passed out of his possession before the crime.

According to Attorney Fuller, one of the city's leading lawyers, has an excellent alibi covering his movements on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, on one of which days it is believed the girl was murdered and dismembered at Tiverton.

Little Doubt As to Victim.

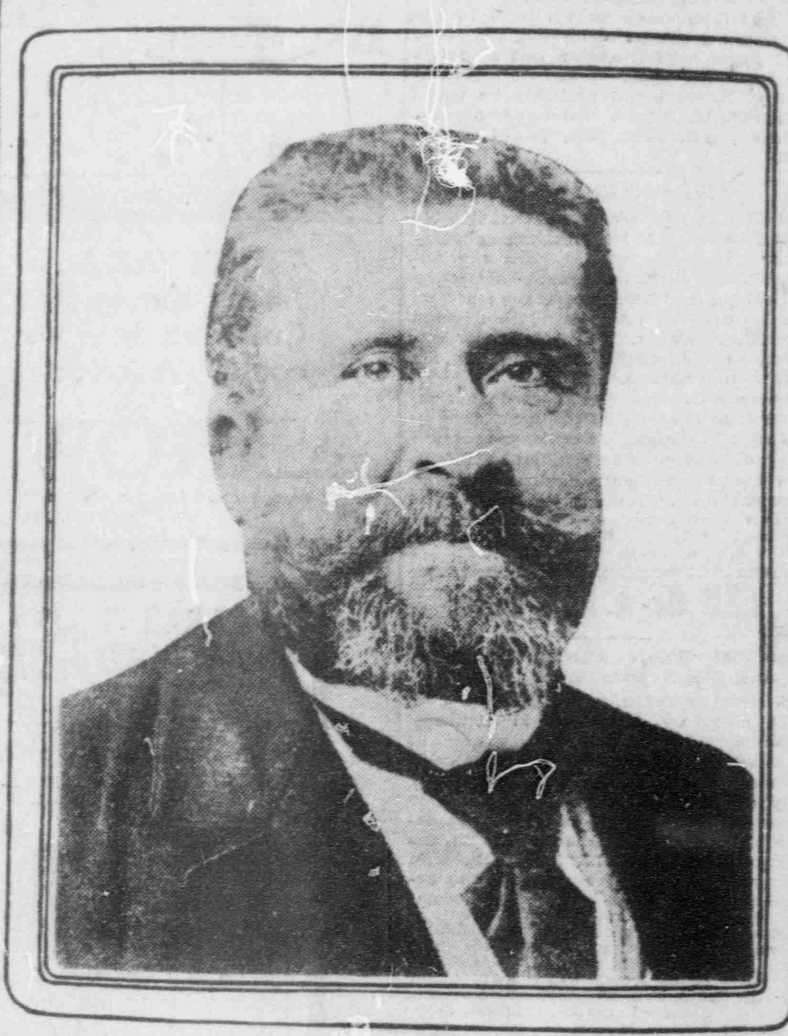

Though it has been impossible to absolutely identify the portions of the body as Amelie St. Jean, very little doubt now remains that she was the victim. Every effort is still being made to recover the head, and as a further aid, the girl's mother, Mrs. Joseph St. Jean, of Woonsocket, viewed the portions of the body recovered in the hope of corroborating her husband, who lived in Fall River, and who has declared there can be no doubt that his daughter had been slain.

This identification has also been strengthened by Mrs. Eva Lamoreaux, of this city, with whom the dead girl was living up to the time of her disappearance. Practically all the clothing worn by the victim has been recovered from the Tiverton swamps and from hat to shoes, Mrs. Lamoreaux identifies it all as having belonged to her niece.

Though Thibault admits having known the St. Jean girl well, he tells such a story of his time between Thursday, October 3, when he says he last saw her, and Sunday night that his employer, William Fuller, says there is little doubt that Thibault is innocent.

"I have kept a careful account of the gasoline used and have examined the records of the car's distance thoroughly. It could not have made the trip to Tiverton without leaving some record. I think Thibault may have been entangled with the girl, but he certainly did not take her body to Tiverton in my car."

FEMALE ATHLETE COMMITS SUICIDE

Margaret McCabe Kills Herself in Long Island Railroad Station.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Much mystery surrounds the suicide of Miss Margaret McCabe, a noted girl athlete and deep student of psychological questions, who killed herself shortly after midnight today in the Flatbush avenue station of the Long Island railroad.

The girl, strikingly beautiful, of magnificent figure, and handsomely groomed, attracted much attention as she entered the depot. She paced up and down for a time and then entered the washroom. When she emerged a few moments later she sank into a chair and was dead in a few moments.

In the washroom were found bits of paper from a letter she had attempted to destroy. The police pieced the letter together and ascertained her address. It is believed the reason for the girl's suicide is contained in the letter, but the police refuse to divulge its contents.

Miss McCabe's father is a wealthy retired manufacturer.

He slept from 1 o'clock until 7:30, and there are now hopes that he will recover.

Another GRAUSTARK Story

By the Famous Story Writer
GEO. BARR McCUTCHEON

Entitled "TRUXTON KING"

Truxton King, big, handsome, good-natured and young, ranges over the face of the earth looking for romance and adventure, and finding none, until at last he comes to the natural home of such things—Graustark. There, from the time he jumps over the palace wall and meets Prince Robin, and first sets eyes on the fascinating heroine, he enjoys enough adventure to occupy even his superabundant energies. Before he knows it, a band of anarchists want to put him out of the way for one reason, and a very cold-blooded plotter wants him put out of the way for another reason, and there's an adorable girl who won't let him be put out of the way for any reason. And so he gets into the thick of things, and risks his life more than once, and fights manfully for the girl he loves. All the time Graustark, the same old, romantic land of Graustark, is in a ferment. There are plots and counterplots, the scurry of hoofs, the clash of swords, and the crack of rifles. And things happen with an unexpectedness, a rush, and a go which sweep the reader along to the breathless end.

SEA OF DISCORD NOW THREATENS THROE OF SPAIN

Ship of State Unable to Weather Terrific Storm.

DISORDER INDICATES COMING CONFLICT

Relations of Church and Government Chief Drawback to Unhappy Ruler.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—King Alfonso's throne is tottering.

Spain is a seething sea of intrigue and revolution, on which the royal ship of state, a battered and weakened hull, is being tossed about in a last struggle. Revolution is inevitable. The flash may not come within a week or a month. It may be staved off for a year, but there is every reason to believe today, following the white heat engendered by the state's murder of Francisco Ferrer, the outbreak is near at hand.

Moreover, developments of the last two days have indicated clearly that once the fires of revolution break out in Spain, there will be the gravest danger of the conflagration spreading to every Latin country of Southern Europe.

Situation Worse.

The situation is 100 per cent graver than it was at Barcelona during the uprising last July.

At that time the disorders were largely socialistic and anti-military. Since then the anti-clerical factor has become vastly larger, and anarchistic propaganda has spread throughout every district of the peninsula. So universal has become the disaffection and spirit of revolution that in my opinion no scheme of evolution can be made to solve the problem.

Cortes to Meet.

The Spanish cortes has been called to meet today, at the instance of Premier Maura. The call was issued at a time when the government had by dint of special effort created a semblance of order and when it was possible to issue the call without appearing to do so under stress of public demand. At that time no member of the Spanish royal party was far-sighted enough to imagine the furor that was to be created by the execution of Ferrer.

Today the alarm in the Spanish capital is so great that every government in Europe is on the anxious seat, lest the opening of the parliament be characterized by a bomb outrage.

There is going to be trouble with the cortes. The liberals have long been in majority over the conservatives, but the former have hitherto been split in many factions that the conservatives had a greater strength than any one branch of the liberals, and Alfonso has been able to have his own way. Since the suspension of the constitution, however, the liberal factions have united and agreed their first action will be to demand anti-clerical legislation along lines similar to those enacted recently by the French assembly. This demand is apt to be the one incident which will set the country aflame.

Church and State.

The church, which has for generations been a frightful burden upon Spain, has recently become well-nigh unbearable, not because it is the Catholic Church, but because it is the State Church. It controls an immense, unearned share of the country's wealth and pays no taxes. The people are inhumanly taxed to support it. Industrially, it competes at an unfair advantage with Spanish workmen and is the "vested interest" of the nation.

Alfonso realizes his hold on his people has been broken. He looks to the church for support and will never consent to its separation from the state. If he clings to his present course, his overthrow is inevitable. The fall of the present dynasty will assuredly be followed by the establishment of a republic. The pretender is little known and less liked. His party is small and the country is sick of monarchy.

Owing to the exercise of censorship, the rigidity of which has never been equaled even in Russia, it has been impossible to give an accurate detailed day by day account of the disorders in Spain. A brief slice-up of the situation may not be amiss.

Under Martial Law.

At the time of the Barcelona riot Spain was placed under martial law. This act, instead of checking sedition, outside the Catalonian province, caused it to spread all through Spain. Premier Maura saw the necessity of restoring the constitution and convening the cortes. He must have some excuse other than a popular demand. He ordered General Merina, commander of the Spanish forces in Morocco, to furnish the government at once with a victory or something that looked like one.

A real victory was impossible. The Riffs insisted on a guerrilla campaign. An imitation victory was easier. General Merina began his widely advertised "forward movement" on Mt. Gurugu. The Riffs saw no advantage in holding a worthless sand dune and retired. Only three rifle shots were fired by the Riffs during the engagement.

Two days later a Spanish column ventured a few miles from the main body, was ambushed, and lost 300 men, including the commander. The following day 15,000

While the Street was still talking about the sale to the Northwestern magnate, Mr. Hawley acquired the control of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, giving him a connection to the East for his Western properties and now the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, known for years as "The Katy."

Today after forty-two years of rail-roading, Edwin Hawley controls six great railroad systems, having a total mileage of 2,913 miles. By the purchase of "The Katy," he added 3,043 miles to his holdings and the spurs of the run up and down the spines of the Gould family, for "The Katy" has ever been a great enemy of the Goulds and with the Hawley roads assisting it and Hawley's allies the Moores and Reid in the Rock Island, diverting freight to the Hawley line, the battle of the Hawley maxims is not to parallel ones' own lines. He has made no mistakes like this.

Hawley's Properties.

Mr. Hawley controls at the present time the following properties:

Roads.	Mileage.
Missouri, Kansas and Texas.....	2,943
Chesapeake and Ohio.....	3,043
Minneapolis and St. Louis.....	1,850
Toledo, St. Louis and Western.....	354
Iowa Central.....	538
Total.....	7,312

Closely allied with the Hawley roads are the Hocking Valley and the Toledo and Ohio Central, while his best friends are closely connected with the Atlantic Coast line, the Louisville and Nashville system, a total of more than 10,000 miles of "friendly" ownership.

By the election of Yoakum, of the Rock Island system, to the Missouri, Kansas and Texas directorate with Mr. Hawley, the inference has been plainly established that he also has entered on the most friendly relations with W. H. H. Moore, Dan Reid, and others, general of the great Rock Island system.

Two of Mr. Hawley's nearest friends, George H. Ross and George Crocker, the former vice president of the Alton, and the latter a California millionaire, are on the directorate of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient road, with a Pacific terminus at Port Bellwell, and the Hawley roads and this system will work hand in glove to the benefit of each.

Lined Up With Hawley.

The election of Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank of New York to the directorate of "The Katy" also suggests that the "Big
